

There are three main beaches on the island. The first beach one comes upon on the north-eastern part of the island and which runs along the the coastal area which has been developed, is called Potha. Here you will find your typical peachful sandy beaches with plenty of shade for the most part due to trees. There are also plenty of umbrellas and sunbeds for rent as well if that is your pleasure.

Fractured and jagged, the rocks are a mix of grey and brown, with some green moss growing in the crevices. The water is a vibrant blue, and the sky is a clear, pale blue.

As you walk along the path, you can see the sea from a distance. The water is a deep blue, and the rocks are a mix of grey and brown. The sky is a clear, pale blue.
